SCHOOL NOTES

Interesting Items by the County Superintendent.

To the pupils of Fulton County schools—Don't forget that next week we are asked to help build a new home for Kentucky's orphan children. This home is for the most unfortunate children, the ones who have no other home but the orphanage.

We have many calls for money, but this is an appeal that will surely reach all types of people, the generous who are always ready to help, the patriotic ladies—whether French, Italian or Chinese—and those who believe only in home missions, for these are children from this county in the present home.

Since its organization the Kentucky Children's Home Society has aided more than 8,000 children, and as fast as possible places them with reliable foster parents to be reared under the supervision of the Society.

At the present time the Society owns half of a city block. There are about two hundred children at the Home. The play grounds are too small, the school grounds, dining room and dormitories are crowded and hospital facilities are inadequate. Imagine thirty boys sleeping in crowded quarters and having a play ground 30 x 40 feet. There are many babies there and these little fellows who have started life in a hospital, surely deserve our best sympathy which can be best shown by our assistance in giving them the nearest substitute for a real home.

Fulton county is asked for $2000 to be raised by the school children. We are sure the children will do their part if they have the cooperation and help of the grown-ups.

It has been suggested that each teacher appoint a committee of larger pupils to collect money at some specified time next week.

—Hazel Luten, Superintendent.

"WETS" GIVE UP

Prohibition Act Expected to Become Effective Oct. 28.

While no intimation has been given as to the attitude of the present opponents of prohibition and the prohibition enforcement bill, they have practically abandoned any hope of its veto by Mr. Wilson. Present indications are that the enforcement measure, passed by the Illinois of the chief executive, will automatically become a law on October 28, ten days after its receipt at the White House, without the signature of the President.

The measure is now in the hands of the Attorney General, to whom it was sent for scrutiny as to its constitutionality, but this is considered in this instance a mere formality, as the measure was submitted to Mr. Palmer before being introduced into Congress, and it was said that he upholds the judiciary committee as one of the most mooted questions—the definition of intoxicating liquor as any beverage containing more than one-half of 1 per cent of alcohol.

PECANS ARE PLENTIFUL

The Fulton county pecan crop is plentiful this year and owners of groves will reap a rich harvest. These nuts, which formerly sold here at a round 10c a pound, are now being contracted for at 12c a pound. The yield of one good tree will bring as much as $40 to $50.

Incidentally, pecan hunters, who go in to the woods expecting to gather where they choose, will be disappointed. Owners are keeping a close watch on the groves.

The Fulton county grove pecan has a wide reputation for its excellent quality; in fact, there is none better.

SENT TO HOPKINSVILLE

Mrs. Esther Malone, wife of Bill Malone, was tried here Tuesday as to the condition of her mind and adjudged insane. She was specifically charged with "a peculiar desire to associate with males, and while confined to the county poor farm came near killing her child." She looked the part of an underworld wreck—a pathetic and wretched remnant of womanhood. She was ordered sent to the asylum at Hopkinsville.

CROW RAINED OUT

Hon. H. B. Crow, speaker of the Kentucky House, who was billed to speak here Tuesday afternoon, was unable to reach Hickman on account of bad roads, resulting from Monday night's rain. Mr. Crow is a speaker of wide reputation and many people here were keenly disappointed in his failure to get here.

STOPPED THE SALE

The auction sale of horses Saturday by Bondurant & Carpenter was very unsatisfactory to the owners and the sale was called off after a few head had been sold. They had a car load of Montana stock to sell but the bids were way too low. Col. H. B. Robinson, of Union City, was crying the sale.

We are the home of the Mayfield Wooden Mill pants—a guaranteed pant at $2.75. Sullivan Bros.

MOST DECORATED

Corp. Graves, of Hickman, Wears Many Badges of Honor.

Corp. Phillip Graves, son of Mrs. George Graves, who is spending his furlough with home folks, is undoubtedly the most decorated and most honored of Fulton county soldiers.

Young Graves is a corporal in the 15th Infantry, First Division. He has been in service about three years. He left the United States June 11, 1917 and returned Sept. 3, 1919, going over with the first division. His division of 100 men sailed on the ship, the USS Oregon, being in the battles of Arras, Meuse, St. Mihiel, Meuse and Argonne Wood. He bears the scars of two wounds—namely of shell in the back and a bullet in the left arm, but has fully recovered.

Corp. Graves wears the Army of France decoration and personnel citation for bravery awarded by the Field Marshal of France, also a regimental decoration from France. One citation bears date of "Soldiers' Commendation" from the 1st Division, 15th Infantry, 1st Division, 1st Division, 1st Division.

He also wears four service ribbons and is one of only 500 men in the United States who has these. In addition to these he wears a Victory Medal and the top of a truck marksmanship.

His term of enlistment will expire Nov. 10, but at present he is stationed at Camp Taylor. Phillip says he has had plenty of hard life for the overseas and will return home as soon as he is released from service. Now, if any other Fulton county boys have seen as much service as Corp. Graves, he was in France during the "dark days" was in the bloodiest battles and fought under all kinds of conditions. Incidentally, he visited France, Belgium, Germany, Luxembourg, England and possibly other states of Europe.

"OIL" LOTS SELLING FAST

J. W. Roney, looking after the business management of the Roney, McNeil & Truett sale of lots in their oil project in the Redfoot region, tells us that the lots are selling like "hot cakes." These 100-acre lots go at $10 each and the purchaser participates in any production from a well which the company guarantees to put down on its holdings. It is such an attractive inducement to "take a shot at oil" that every mail brings the company orders for lots, from purchasers all over the country. There is little doubt that the entire layout will be sold in a short time, after which the drill will start.

A similar project was promoted in Lake county, in which hundred foot square lots were sold at $100 each, and from an oil standpoint, not near so good as the offering of the Hickman company.

Although the State Fire Marshal has condemned some old shacks and fire-traps in Hickman, it is noticeable that they still stand, weathering the storm of condemnation and in defiance of all civic pride. Here's hoping the next city administration co-operates with the state in ridding the town of these eyesores.

J. T. Willey, of Fulton, and Miss Clara Richmond, formerly of that city but now of Henderson, Ky., were married at the latter place Sunday. They will make their home at Fulton.

Mrs. Chas. Werner left yesterday for Centerville, Ill., to spend a week with her children, J. H. Werner and Mrs. H. J. Pollock.

There's a $2500 clock on the court house that's worth about 30c to the business part of town, being obscured by trees.

Beckham Bard, of Fulton, who disappeared in St. Louis last week, has been found. He enlisted in the navy.

WILL RETIRE FROM RETAIL BUSINESS

Wherever in this issue will be found word from D. P. Ledbovitz, one of Hickman's leading retail merchants, in which he states that he has decided to retire from local mercantile enterprise and become associated with his three brothers in the manufacturing business. The Ledbovitz brothers will embark in the manufacture of men's suits, with their plant located at Louisville. The announcement of Mr. Ledbovitz's business plans comes as a big surprise to many friends here. No finer fellow —and all will wish him success in his new undertaking. His brothers, well-known here, are also experienced, and have had wide experience as salesmen in the line which all jointly engage in. It is with regret that we learn that we are losing Mr. Ledbovitz as a citizen and a man of Hickman. He is the son of the late E. B. Ledbovitz, a member of the city council, prominent Mason, a wide-awake man and a genial, popular, and fellow.

CUT OFF SUPPLY

Fulton Merchant Cuts Flour Prices and Wholesaler Butts In.

In a letter from a Fulton merchant addressed to the Governor and referred to the Kentucky Board of Living Commission, it is brought out that the dealers' efforts to assist the commission in selling at a low price resulted in a wholesaler refusing to sell 1000 barrels of flour dealt in by that wholesaler.

The name of the wholesaler is not given in the letter, and the commission statement for the name of the Fulton merchant is as follows:

"The Governor of Kentucky—I am over investigating the high cost of flour. I was handling a certain company's flour. Because I sold it too cheaply he took it away. I would not sell any more to me. The same man is selling down in Mississippi. He was selling me flour for $11.95 and I got $12.40. He's selling flour at $11.50 and I got $12. Its price was at $10.95 and I got $11.90, while others were getting 10c to 10.50 on the barrel. It was going to 10c to 10.50. He was not selling."

The commission statement, but it is investigating.

STRAINS CLOTHES GET LINE

Last Friday night a third store near all the clothes off a line at the residence of Homer Proctor, in West Hickman. Whether it was known what they wanted or all the lady's clothes were stolen, including stockings and underwear while some ladies for larger children were left on the line. Some of Homer's clothes were also taken, as well as some of Mrs. Proctor's.

AUTOMOBILE BURNS

An Overland automobile owned by Edwin Bond was totally destroyed by fire Monday. The accident happened at the British Switch railroad crossing two miles north of Fulton, and is supposed to have been caused by a short circuit or back fire from the engine.

Never have we been so well supplied with heavy merchandise to keep you warm and dry. Prices always right at Sullivan Bros.

FIX SUGAR PRICE

Gov't. Says Refiners Cannot Charge More Than 10c a Pound.

Steps to prevent an abnormal increase in the price of sugar because of the existing shortage were taken Tuesday by the Department of Justice.

Attorney General Palmer notified two sugar refiners who have been withholding their products from the market until the price situation became more stabilized that the United States sugar cartelization board had determined 10 cents was a fair price to be charged the wholesaler and that any charge in excess of that amount would be regarded as a violation of the food control act.

Refiners were asked to telegraph their acceptance in this price, which would mean they could put their supply on the market immediately, thereby relieving the present stringency.

The price to the wholesaler heretofore has been nine cents, so that the new price means an increase of one cent a pound. Refiners have been allowed to charge 11 cents a pound for sugar sold under old prices. While the Department of Justice and the sugar board did not state what the new retail price would be, it was assumed that the increase would not be greater than the wholesale advance.

The shortage in Hickman has been acute for the past two weeks. Many families have had no sugar for a week or more, and the retail price here runs as high as 17 1/2 cents, with a limit of two pounds to a customer. The merchants say they are paying 14 cents for sugar in St. Louis and then are unable to secure more than one or two bags at a time, while some have had no sugar in stock in the past two weeks. The Wilson-Hale Wholesale Grocery, of this city, received a car of sugar yesterday, but this will be parceled out in very limited quantities and will not make a dent in the existing shortage.

59c FOR COTTON

Local Firm Gets Highest Price Ever Paid for Fulton County Cotton.

W. A. Johnston, member of the firm of the Johnston Land Co., Fulton Co. planters, secured a sales ticket from a Memphis commission house where they had sold two bales for them at 59 cents a pound—on Friday's market. At that time the spot quotations were slightly under 53 cents, indicating that cotton of the Park area.

This is no doubt the highest price ever paid for Fulton county cotton. The two bales brought $584.40—to say nothing of the seed.

With the largest crop we've had in this county in the past five years and prices up, planters and their co-workers should enjoy real prosperity this season.

PROTESTS RAISE

Evergreen Camp Adopts Resolutions; Asks State Meeting.

Evergreen Camp of the W. O. W., at Fulton, has taken the lead in protesting against the recent raise of rates in the order. The raise was decided on by the national convention recently held in Chicago and has aroused strong protests all over the country. The local camp is getting in touch with all the camps of the state and will call a general meeting for next Friday, Oct. 24. Resolutions adopted in the meeting there characterize the proposed raise as "illegal and unjustifiable." The Evergreen Camp has an active membership of 385, and is one of the strongest camps in the state.

Dr. J. M. Hubbard, Rob Tyler, Jim Mayes, Judge Will Amberg, Henry Helm and other local "nobles of the mystic shrine", are busy laying plans for escorting a class of a dozen or so of Hickman novices to Louisville on the 27th of the coming month to have them tread the hot sands of Shrinism. Kosair Temple, the big Shrine den at Louisville, announces a ceremonial de luxe for Thanksgiving day. Practically all the red fez bunch at Hickman plans to go and will probably be picked up by a Shriners' special train at Fulton.

The city campaign is already warm and in the remaining eleven days indications are that it will grow hot. There are three candidates for mayor, eleven for councilmen and two for chief of police. The dear voter gets button-holed at every turn—and gets an occasional el stinko clear. Things will change after Nov. 4th.

One of our readers wants to know what's become of the several thousand dollars, donated to put a second story on the new high school building? Don't know, reader; but that bunch of money is capable of pulling down several dollars per annum interest—and maybe you'll get a dividend later on.

Mrs. B. C. Staples, Miss Birdie May Rice and Mrs. Dee L. McNeill are spending the week in Memphis, the guests of Miss Dora McNeill.

O. B. Kerlin, of Clinton, spent Tuesday in Hickman.

Twenty-Fifth Installment.

The nine justices of the peace would seem now to have been sufficient to have preserved the peace and dignity of the state within Fulton county, but in 1847 by an act of the Legislature another justice of the peace was authorized in Fulton county to reside in Madrid Bend. The act provided that Fulton county should have five constables and the County Court was directed to divide the county into five such districts.

The second Monday in each month was fixed as the County Court day for Fulton county, and this time of holding the County Court has never been changed. There were two terms of the Circuit Court at that time, each year, and the time of holding the Circuit Court was fixed as the second Monday in May, and the fourth Monday in October.

er, and it was provided that the Circuit Court might hold as long as six days, if the business required.

The county seat was located at Hickman, but in order that such location should be permanent it was required that a suitable lot for a court house be donated to the county and that by the first day of August, 1845, subscriptions of four thousand dollars be made by solvent men, payable in three annual installments as a donation to the county for the erection of a court house and such public buildings as might be required for the use of the county.

G. W. L. Marr desired to Fulton county the lots upon which the court house and jail now stand and executed his obligation for the payment of the four thousand dollars as required by the act of the Legislature, locating the county seat at Hickman. When this subscription of four thousand dollars was made by G. W. L. Marr, there was an agreement made with him that his note for the amount should be replaced by the subscriptions and donations of other parties but the records fail to show who were the other subscribers to the required amount of four thousand dollars.

At this first term of the County Court, L. D. Stephens was appointed clerk pro tem of the County Court. An indication of his knowledge of keeping the records was required before he could be appointed permanently. His appointment as clerk was to continue during good behavior. L. D. Stephens was afterwards appointed clerk permanently. Edward I. Bullock was appointed County Attorney, Austin S. Tyler and James W. Gibson were recommended to the Governor as suitable qualified ones of whom A. S. Tyler was appointed Surveyor, Robert Powell was appointed Coroner, John Betts was appointed Jailor.

BORE FOR OIL

Drilling is to Start in Short Time. Three Wells to go Down.

Hon. Thomas G. Morris tells that a careful and scientific geologic and topographic survey of Union and Lake counties having been made and completed 3 wells at points as remote as possible from the other will be bored right away. Contract for the immediate boring of one of these wells will be let out the latter part of this week. The borings are chiefly to determine the subterranean geologic formations below the superincumbent surface soil. The company has invested $25,000 in leases and will invest $100,000 in the three wells.—Union City News Banner.

HOLD YOUR COTTON

Conditions Justify Holding For at Least Six Months.

The Courier is in receipt of the following letter from M. C. Allgood, Commissioner of Agriculture of Alabama:

The following information was gained at the world's cotton conference at New Orleans:

English spinners will make arrangements to buy 2,000,000 bales of American cotton. Indications now are less than a 10,000,000 bale crop. English and American spinners have very little cotton on hand. They are making immense fortunes on account of the high prices received for their goods. They could now pay the farmer 60 cents a pound for cotton based on the selling price of the cloth.

Spinners are excited over the shortage of our production. They have millions tied up in equipment and thousands of workers dependent upon them for work, and must have cotton. The American farmers have a limited supply of cotton and can and will get 40 cents if they hold for it. It takes 12 months to grow cotton. It should be marketed over a period of 12 months and not forced on the market in three months. This year's short crop was produced on the basis of war-time prices and with four successive short crops the world will face a cotton famine next June.

Thousands of tons of cotton seed in Texas on account of the incessant rains have sprouted and rotted in the field. In previous years cotton seed mills have crushed thousands of tons of peanuts. Today peanuts are selling for $100 a ton for shelling purposes. Therefore cotton seed oil will have no competition from peanut oil.

Therefore, based on these facts, I beg farmers to temporarily hold on to their cotton and seed until the above mentioned prices are obtained.

WILL NOT RUN

Pres. Wilson Will Not be Candidate for Third Term.

That President Wilson will not be a candidate to succeed himself, is about the only thing that can be said positively at this time regarding the politics of 1920.

If there was no other consideration involved, the state of the President's health is such that he would be physically able neither to undertake such a campaign as will be necessary to win the next election, nor assume burdens of the presidency for another four year period, if he could be elected without a personal campaign.

The plain truth is, of course, that the next campaign is going to be a hard fought one from beginning to end. The Republicans will fight as they have often fought for the presidency and the Wilson campaign policies will be the real issue in the offensive they will launch.

The Democratic candidate must defend those policies and with great vigor and great effect. If he is to have an even chance at the polls. And it is not belittled for a minute that the President will be in a physical condition, capable of undertaking the task.

In fact, the possibility of Mr. Wilson's candidacy has been dismissed by those closely associated with him.

As the result, the field for Democratic candidates for the presidential nomination is wide open. Many leading Democrats, who were inclined to eliminate themselves as presidential possibilities so long as there was a chance that the President would become the standard-bearer now feel at liberty to initiate their campaigns whenever they think the time is right.

18th ROWBOAT.

Local sportsmen, especially those desiring to glide over many of the surrounding lakes usually handicapped by not finding a boat on them, will be interested in knowing that they can now get a small light boat, which may be carried along in the Tin Lizzie.

For their benefit have now been built two small boats that they can carry 12 hours a day without exhaustion. One is the invention of an Englishman. It weighs but 18 lb. and collapses to the size of a small handbag, yet its canvas bottom easily holds a heavy occupant. Each of the four sides is formed of an air-tight bag which is inflated by a hand pump. The second feather weight boat is more complex in construction but easier to handle. When collapsed it fits into a wooden box, about the size of the case that is used to hold the popular croquet mallets.

HOME DRUGGISTS AND DOCTORS TAKE AND RECOMMEND NUMBER 40 FOR THE BLOOD.

Mr. Theodore Gerke of the Gerke Drug Co., states: "A year or so ago my wife came into the drug store and said she was going to take a blood medicine. She looked over the bins we had on the shelf and decided to try Number 40. After taking it a while she gave it to our son and one day I was complaining of that tired feeling and she said, 'I will dose you on 40,' and she did, and it helped me so much that I have been recommending it to my customers and buy in gross lots. With scarcely an exception, druggists in Evansville and this vicinity unanimously endorse and recommend Number 40. An old and very successful physician remarked to me a short time ago on the street, 'I am taking Number 40. It will prolong a man's life.' Made by J. C. Mendenhall, 40 years a druggist, Evansville, Ind. Sold by Cowell's Drug Store.

A transaction affecting the largest land deal ever known in Hickman county was made last week, when L. M. Hilliard took an option on the 624-acre farm of Cage Vivrett. $10,000 is said to be the figure. Mr. Hilliard is to dispose of the land within 60 days.

GREEN FANCY by GEORGE BARR Mc CUTCHEON

Author of "GRAUSTARK," "THE HOLLOW OF HER HAND," "THE PRINCE OF GRAUSTARK," ETC.

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I—Thomas K. Barnes, wealthy New Yorker, on a walking trip through New England is caught in a storm miles from his destination. At a crossroads he meets a girl in the same plight. While they discuss the situation an automobile, sent to meet the girl, arrives and Barnes is given a lift to Hart's tavern, while the girl is taken on to her destination, which she tells Barnes is a place called Green Fancy.

CHAPTER II—At the tavern Barnes falls in with a stranded troupe of "larn-shoring" actors, headed by Lyndon Rushcroft, and becomes interested in them.

CHAPTER III—As the storm grows, Barnes finds himself worrying over the safety of the girl, traveling over the mountain roads at what he considers dangerous speed. He learns that Green Fancy is something of a house of mystery. Two mounted men have the tavern in a manner which arouses Barnes' curiosity.

CHAPTER IV—He meets "Miss Thackeray," leading lady of the stranded theatrical troupe, who is acting as chambermaid. That night he is aroused by the bringing of a young man to the tavern, one of the two who had ridden away a short time before. They tell of finding the dead body of the other man. Both had been shot.

CHAPTER V—A man, dressed in a military uniform, enters the room, and Barnes is struck by his bearing. He is a man of high rank, and Barnes is struck by his bearing. He is a man of high rank, and Barnes is struck by his bearing.

CHAPTER VI—The man, dressed in a military uniform, enters the room, and Barnes is struck by his bearing. He is a man of high rank, and Barnes is struck by his bearing. He is a man of high rank, and Barnes is struck by his bearing.

CHAPTER VII—She seems not to be a man of high rank, and Barnes is struck by his bearing. He is a man of high rank, and Barnes is struck by his bearing. He is a man of high rank, and Barnes is struck by his bearing.

more properly speaking as if he were doing Barnes a great favor in allowing him to lend money to a person of his importance.

"A thought has just come to me, my dear fellow," he remarked as they arose from table. "With the proper kind of backing I could put over one of the most stupendous things the theater has known in fifty years. I don't mind saying to you—although it's rather sub rosa—that I have written a play—a four-act drama that will pack the house for as many months as we care to stay. Perhaps you will allow me to talk it over with you a little later on. You will be interested, I'm sure. Egad, sir, I'll read the play to you. I'll—What ho, landlord! Have your best automobile sent around to the door as quickly as possible. A couple of my men are going to Hornville to fetch him."

"Just a minute," interrupted Putnam Jones, wholly unimpressed. "A man just called you up on the phone, Mr. Barnes. I told him you was entertaining royalty at lunch and couldn't be disturbed. So he asked me to have you call him up as soon as you revived. His words, not mine. Call up Mr. O'Dowd at Green Fancy. Here's the number."

The mellow voice of the Irishman soon responded to Barnes' call.

"I called you up to relieve your mind regarding the young woman who came last night," he said. "You observe that I say 'came.' She's quite all right, safe and sound, and no cause for uneasiness. I thought you meant that she was coming here as a guest, and so I made the very natural mistake of saying she hadn't come at all. The young woman in question is Mrs. Van Dyke's maid. But, bless me soul, how was I to know she was even in existence, much less expected by train or motor or Shanks' mare? Well, she's here, so there's the end of our mystery."

Barnes was slow in replying. He was doubting his own ears. It was not conceivable that an ordinary—or even an extraordinary—lady's maid could have possessed the exquisite voice and manner of his chance acquaintance of the day before, or the timidity to order that sour-faced chauffeur about as if—The chauffeur!

"But I thought you said that Mr. Curtis' chauffeur was moon-faced and—"

"He is, indeed," broke in Mr. O'Dowd, chuckling. "That's what deceived me entirely, and no wonder. It wasn't Peter at all, but the rapscallion washer who went after her. He was instructed to tell Peter to meet the four o'clock train, and the blockhead forgot to give the order. Bodad, what does he do but sneak out after her himself, scared out of his boots for fear of what he was to get from Peter. I had the whole story from Mrs. Van Dyke."

"Well, I'm tremendously relieved," said Barnes slowly.

"And so am I," said O'Dowd with conviction. "I have seen the heroine of our hushed romance. She's a good-looking girl. I'm not surprised that she kept her veil down. If you were to leave it to me, though, I'd say that it's a sin to carry discretion so far as all that. You see what I mean, don't you?" His rich laugh came over him.

"Perfectly. Thank you for letting me know. My mind is at rest. Good-by." As he hung up the receiver he said to himself, "You are a most reliable, convincing chap, Mr. O'Dowd, but I don't believe a word you say. That woman is no lady's maid, and you've known all the time that she was there."

At that moment he had not made for a tramp up the mountain road in which the two men had been shot down. He asked was quite clear. Room and Paul were not ordinary rubbers. They were no doubt, honest men. He would have said that they were thieves bent on burglarizing Green Fancy were it not for the disfigurement of Miss Thackeray and the very convincing proof that they were not shot by the same man.

It was not beyond reason—indeed, it was quite probable—that they were trying to cross the border; in that event their real operations would be confined to the Canadian side of the line. He could not free himself of the suspicion that Green Fancy possessed the key to the situation. Room and his companion could not have had the slightest interest in his movements up to the point he remembered the young woman of the crossroads. His brain suddenly suffered the shock of a distinct connection. Was she a fellow conspirator? Was she the middle worker at Green Fancy in a well-laid plan to rifle the place?

Catarrhal Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure catarrhal deafness, and that is by a constitutional remedy. Catarrhal Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a running sound or impaired hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result. Unless the inflammation can be reduced and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. Many cases of deafness are caused by catarrh, which is an inflamed condition of the mucous surface. HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE acts thru the blood on the mucous surface of the system.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Catarrhal Deafness that cannot be cured by HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE. Circular free. All Druggists, etc.

GREEN FANCY

By GEORGE BARR McCUTCHEN

place called Green Fancy.

His ramble carried him far beyond the spot where Roan's body was found and where young Conley had come upon the tethered horses. His eager, curious gaze swept the forest to the left of the road in search of Green Fancy. Overcome by a rash, daring impulse, he climbed over the stake and rider fence and snatched among the big trees which so far had obscured the house from view. The trees grew very thickly on the slope, and they were unusually large. He progressed deeper into the wood. At the end of what must have been a mile he halted. There was no sign of habitation, no indication that man had ever penetrated so far into the forest. As he was on the point of retracing his steps toward the road his gaze fell upon a huge, moss-covered rock less than a hundred yards away. He stared, and gradually it began to take on angles and planes and recesses of the most astounding symmetry. Under his widening gaze it was transformed into a substantial object of cubes and gables and—yes, windows. He was looking upon the strange home of the even stranger Mr. Curtis—Green Fancy.

Now he understood why it was called Green Fancy. Its surroundings were no greener than itself; it seemed to melt into the foliage, to become a part of the natural landscape. Mountain ivy literally enveloped it. Exposed sections of the house were painted green; the doors were green; the leafy porches and their columns, the chimney pots, the window hangings—all were the color of the unchanging forest. And it was a place of huge dimensions, low and long and rambling.

"God," he said to himself, "what manner of crank is he who would bury himself like this? Of all the crazy ideas I ever—"

CHAPTER VII.

Spun-Gold Hair, Blue Eyes and Various Encounters.

She was quite unaware of his presence, and yet he was directly in her path, though some distance away. Her head was bent; her men was thoughtful, her stride slow and aimless. She was slender, graceful and evidently quite tall, although she seemed a pigmy among the towering giants that attended her stroll. Her hands were thrust deep into the pocket of a white duck skirt. A glance revealed white shoes and trim ankles in blue. She wore no hat. Her hair was like spun gold, thick, wavy and shimmering in the subdued light.

Suddenly she stopped and looked up. He had a full view of her face as she gazed about as if startled by some unexpected, even alarming sound. For a second or two he held his breath, stunned by the amazing loveliness that was revealed to him. Then she discovered him standing there.

In a flash he realized that he was face to face with the stranger of the day before. He took two or three impulsive steps forward, his hand going to his hat—and then halted. Evidently his senses had deceived him. There was no smile in her eyes—and yet he could have sworn that it was there an instant before. Instead there was a level stare.

"I am sorry if I startled—" he began.

The figure of a man appeared as if discharged bodily from some magic tree-trunk, and stood directly in his path—a tall, rugged man in overalls was he, who held a spade in his hand and eyed him intently. Without another glance in his direction the first and more pleasing vision turned on her heel and continued her stroll, sauntering off to the right, her fair head once more bent in study her back eloquently indifferent to the gaze that followed her.

"Who do you want to see?" inquired the man with the spade.

Before Barnes could reply a heavy voice accosted him from behind. He whirled and saw O'Dowd approaching, not twenty yards away. The Irishman's face was aglow with pleasure. "I knew I couldn't be mistaken in the shape of you," he cried, advancing with outstretched hand. "You've got the breadth of a dockhand in your shoulders and the trimness of a prize fighter in your waist."

They shook hands. "I fear I am trespassing," said Barnes. His glance went over his shoulder as he spoke. The man with the spade had been swallowed up by the earth. He could not have vanished more quickly in any other way. Of among the trees were intermittent flashes of blue and white.

"I am quite sure you are," said O'Dowd promptly but without a trace of unfriendliness in his manner. "Indeed, loving him as I do, I can't help saying that Curtis is a badly off crank. Mind you, I'd say it to his face—I often do, for the matter of that. Of course," he went on seriously, "he is a sick man, poor devil. You see I've known him for a dozen years and more, and he likes me, though God knows why, unless it may be that I once did his son a good turn in London."

"Sufficient excuse for repatriation, I should say," smiled Barnes.

"I introduced the lad to me only sister," said O'Dowd, "and she kept him happy for the next ten years. No doubt I also provided Mr. Curtis with three grandchildren he might never have had but for my graciousness. A look of distress came into his merry eyes. 'By Jove, I'd like nothing better than to ask you in to have a dish of tea—it's tea-time, I'm sure—but I'd no more think of doing it than I'd consider cutting off my head. He doesn't like strangers. He—'

"My dear fellow, don't distress yourself," cried Barnes heartily. "There isn't the least reason in the world why—"

"You see, the poor old chap asks us up here once or twice a year—that is to say, De Soto and me—to keep his sister from tilling the house up with men he can't endure. So long as we occupy the only available rooms, he argues, she can't stuff them full of objectionables. Twice a year she comes for a month, in the late fall and early spring."

"Why does he continue to live in this out-of-the-world spot? He is an odd man, I take it, and ill."

"You wouldn't be wondering if you knew the man," said O'Dowd. "He is a scholar, a dreamer, a sufferer. He's not a very old man at that. Not more than sixty-five."

"He certainly has a fanciful streak in him, building a place like that," said Barnes, looking not at the house but into the thicket above. There was no sign of the blue and white and the spun gold that still defied exclusion from his mind's eye. He had not recovered from the thrill into which the vision of loveliness plunged him. He was still a trifle dazed and distraught.

"Right you are," agreed O'Dowd; "the queerest streak in the world. It's his notion of simplicity."

"Green Fancy. Is that the name he gave the place or does it spring from—"

"'Twas christened by me own sister, Mr. Barnes, the first time she was here, two years ago. I'll walk with you to the fence beyond if you've no objections," said O'Dowd genially, and linked his arm through that of Barnes.

The latter was not once subtly aware of the fact that he was being deliberately conducted from the grounds. Moreover, he was now convinced that O'Dowd had been close upon his heels from the instant he entered them.

There was something uneasy in the feeling that possessed him. Such espionage as this signified something deep and imperative in the presence not only of O'Dowd but the jack-in-the-box gardener a few minutes earlier.

His mind was still full of the lovely stranger about whom O'Dowd had so manifestly lied over the telephone.

"I must ask you to apologize to the young lady on whom I blundered a few moments ago, Mr. O'Dowd. She must have been startled. Pray convey to her my solicitude and excuses."

"Consider it done, my dear sir," said the Irishman. "Our most charming and seductive guest," he went on. "Indeed, of the two of you, I'll stake my head you were startled the most, coming suddenly upon such rare loveliness is almost equivalent to being struck by a bolt of lightning. More than one painter of portraits has said that she is the most beautiful woman in the world. Mayhap you have heard of her. She is Miss Cameron of New Orleans, a friend of Mrs. Van Dyke. We have quite an enchanting house party, Mr. Barnes, if you consider no more than the feminine side of it. By the way, have you heard when the coroner is to hold his inquest?"

"Nothing definite. He may wait a week," said Barnes.

"I suppose you'll stick around until it's over," ventured O'Dowd. Barnes thought he detected a slight harshness in his voice.

"I have quite made up my mind to stay until the mystery is entirely cleared up," he said. "The case is so interesting that I don't want to miss a shred of it."

"I don't blame you," said O'Dowd heartily. "I'd like nothing better myself than to mix up in it. The next time you plan to pay us a visit, telephone in advance. I may be able to persuade my host that you're a decent, law-abiding, educated gentleman, and he'll consent to receive you at Green Fancy. Good day to you," and he shook hands with the departing trespasser.

"Tak'n a walk?" was the landlord's greeting as Barnes mounted the tavern steps at dusk.

"Going over the grounds of last night's affair," responded Barnes, pausing.

As he entered the door he was acutely aware of an intense stare leveled at him from behind by the landlord of Hart's Tavern. Half way up the stairway he stopped short and with difficulty repressed the exclamation that rose to his lips.

He had recalled a significant incident of the night before. Almost immediately after the departure of Roan and Paul from the Tavern Putnam Jones had made his way to the telephone behind the desk and had called a number in a loud, brisk voice, but the subsequent conversation was carried on in subdued tones, attended by hasty and occasional furtive glances in the direction of the taproom.

Upon reaching his room Barnes permitted the suppressed emotion to escape his lips in the shape of a soft whistle, which if it could have been translated into words would have said: "By God, why haven't I thought of it before? He sent out the warning that Roan and Paul were on the way! And I'd like to bet my last dollar that someone at Green Fancy had the other end of the wire."

Mr. Ruschroft was giving Hamlet's address to the players, in the taproom when Barnes came downstairs at nine o'clock.

A small, dark man who sat alone at a table in the corner caught Barnes' eye and smiled almost mournfully. He was undoubtedly a stranger; his action was meant to convey to Barnes the information that he too was from a distant and sophisticated community and that a bond of sympathy existed between them.

Putnam Jones spoke suddenly at Barnes' shoulder. He started involuntarily. The man was beginning to get on his nerves. He seemed to be digging his footsteps with ceaseless persistency.

"That fellow over there in the corner," said Jones softly, "is a book agent from your town. He sold me a set of Dickens when he was here last night, about six weeks ago. A year's subscription to two magazines thrown in. By gosh, these book agents are slick ones."

"He's a shrewd-looking chap," commented Barnes. "Says he won't be satisfied till he's made this section of the country the most cultured, refined spot in the United States," said Jones dolefully. "Excuse me. There goes the telephone. Maybe his news from the sheriff."

With the spasmodic twinkling of the telephone bell the book agent arose and made his way to the little office. Barnes glanced over his shoulder a moment later and saw him studying the register. The pulse of his sleek head, however, suggested a listening attitude. Putnam Jones, not four feet away, was speaking into the telephone receiver. As the receiver was restored to his hook Barnes turned again. Jones and the book agent were examining the register, their heads almost meeting from opposite sides of the desk.

The latter straightened up, stretched his arms, yawned, and announced in a loud tone that he guessed he'd stop out and get a bit of fresh air before turning in.

"Any news?" inquired Barnes, approaching the desk after the door had closed behind the book agent.

"It wasn't the sheriff," replied Jones shortly, and immediately resumed his interrupted discourse on books and book agents. Ten minutes elapsed before the landlord's garrulity was checked by the sound of an automobile coming to a stop in front of the house. Barnes turned expectantly toward the door. Almost immediately the car started again, with a loud shifting of gears, and a moment later the door opened to admit, not a fresh arrival but the little book agent.

"Party trying to make Hornville tonight," he announced casually. "Well, good night. See you in the morning."

Barnes was not in a position to doubt the fellow's word, for the car unmistakably had gone on toward Hornville. He waited a few minutes after the man disappeared up the narrow stairway, and then proceeded to test his powers of divination. He was as sure as he could be sure of anything that had not actually come to pass that in a short time the automobile would pass the tavern, but this time from the direction of Hornville.

Lighting a cigarette he strode outside. He had barely time to take a position at the darkened end of the porch before the sounds of an approaching machine came to his ears. A second or two later the lights swung around the bend in the road a quarter of a mile above Hart's Tavern, and down came the car at a high rate of speed. It dashed past the tavern with a great roar and rattle and shot off into the darkness beyond. As it rushed through the dim circle of light in front of the tavern Barnes succeeded in obtaining a brief but convincing view of the car. That glance was enough, however. He would have been willing to go before a jury and swear that it was the same car that had deposited him at Hart's Tavern the day before.

Having guessed correctly in the one instance he allowed himself another and even bolder guess—the little book agent had either received a message from or delivered one to the occupant or driver of the car from Green Fancy.

CHAPTER VIII.

A Note, Some Fancies and an Expedition in Quest of Facts.

He started upstairs, his mind full of the events and conjectures of the day. As he entered the room his eyes fell upon a white envelope at his feet. It had been slipped under the door since he left the room an hour before.

"Tense reminder from the prudent Mr. Jones! His bill for the day! He picked it up, glanced at the inscription, and at once altered his opinion. His full name was there in the handwriting of a woman. For a moment he was puzzled; then he thought of Miss Thackeray. A note of thanks, no doubt, unpleasantly fulsome! Vaguely annoyed, he ripped open the envelope and read:

"In case I do not have the opportunity to speak with you tonight, this is to let you know that the little man who says he is a book agent was in your room for three-quarters of an hour while you were nifty this afternoon. You'd better see if anything is missing."

He made a hasty but careful examination of his effects. There was not the slightest evidence that his pack had been opened or even disturbed. If the little book agent spent three-quarters of an hour in the room he managed most effectually to cover up all traces of his visit.

Barnes did not go to sleep until long after midnight. He now regarded himself as definitely committed to a combination of sinister and pleasant enterprises, not the least of which was to know about the mysterious young woman at Green Fancy.

The next day he, with other lodgers in the Tavern, was put through an examination by the police and county officials from St. Elizabeth, and notified that, while he was not under suspicion or surveillance, it would be necessary for him to remain in the "bull-wick" until detectives, already on the way, were satisfied that he possessed no knowledge that would be useful to them in clearing up what had now assumed the dignity of a "national problem."

O'Dowd rode down from Green Fancy and created quite a sensation among the officials by announcing that they had a perfect right to extend their search for clues to all parts of his estate, and that he was deeply interested in the outcome of their investigations.

The sheriff said he would like to "run over the ground a bit" the very afternoon if it was agreeable to Mr. O'Dowd.

O'Dowd stayed to dinner. (Dinner was served in the middle of the day at Hart's Tavern.) He made a great impression upon Lyndon Ruschroft, who, with his daughter, joined the two men. Indeed, the palvering Irishman extended himself in the effort to make himself agreeable. He was vastly interested in the stage, he declared. As a matter of fact he had been told a thousand times that he ought to go on the stage.

The little book agent came in while they were at table. He sat down in a corner of the dining room and busied himself with his subscription lists while waiting for the meal to be served. He was still poring over them, frowning intently, when Barnes and the others left the room.

Barnes walked out beside Miss Thackeray.

"The tailor-made gown is an improvement," he said to her. He was thinking that she was a very pretty girl, after all.

"The frock usually makes the woman," she said slowly, "but not always the lady."

He thought of that remark more than once during the course of an afternoon spent in the words about Green Fancy.

O'Dowd virtually commanded the expedition. It was he who thought of everything. First of all, he led the party to the corner of the estate nearest the point where Paul was shot from his horse. Sitting in his saddle he called the attention of the other riders to what appeared to be a most significant fact in connection with the killing of his man.

"From what I hear the man Paul was shot through the lungs, directly from in front. The bullet went straight through his body. He was riding very rapidly down the road. When he came to a point not far above the crossroads he was fired upon. It is safe to assume that he was looking intently ahead, trying to make out the crossing. He was not shot from the side of the road, gentlemen, but from the middle of it. The bullet came from a point almost directly in front of him, and not from Mr. Curtis' property here to the left or Mr. Conley's on the right. The chances are that Paul did not accompany Roan to the meeting place up the road. He remained near the horses. That's how he managed to get away so quickly. It remained for the man at the crossroads to settle with him. But we're wasting time with all this twaddle of mine. Let us be moving. There is one point on which we must all agree. The deadliest marksman in the world fired those shots. No bungling on that score, belad."

No Worms in a Healthy Child

All children troubled with worms have an unhealthy color, which indicates poor blood, and as a rule, there is more or less stomach disturbance. GROVE'S TASTELESS CHILD TONIC given regularly for two or three weeks will enrich the blood, improve the digestion, and act as a General Strengthening Tonic to the whole system. Worms will then throw off or digest the worms, and the child will be in perfect health. Pleasant to take. 60c per bottle.

WEALTHY DIG UP

Hidden Wealth Subjected to Taxation And Real Estate Decreases.

Real estate, under the system of classifying property for taxation, adopted by the people of Kentucky and first put into practice by the tax revision of 1917, bears a relatively decreasing proportion of the burden of taxation, as shown by statistics compiled by Ben Marshall, Secretary of the State Tax Commission, for the year 1913 to 1918, inclusive.

Because the average taxpayer does not distinguish between State and local taxes and has not grasped the fact that it is the tax rate and not the assessment which counts, political propaganda apparently has gained converts against the system, among the class of people most benefited by classification—farmers and city real-estate owners.

The state tax rate was reduced from 25 to 40 cents, notwithstanding the increase in assessments of real estate in 1918. It paid the state $42,193.07 less than the year before. It paid to the counties a much larger amount than in 1917, because the counties did not reduce their tax rates.

This year farm real estate will pay to the state more than it did in 1917 but, because of a proportionately larger increase in the returns of money in banks and assessments on personalty, especially intangible property, real estate is bearing a still lower percentage of the burden than it did in 1918.

By another cut in the state rate and contemplated cuts in the county rates by Fiscal Courts, real estate taxes can be reduced again, nearly all of it going for roads and schools. Even now the state revenue from real estate does not cover the appropriations for public school and highways.

From 1913 to 1917, inclusive the statistics show taxes on farm lands ranged from 41.631 per cent to 42.534 per cent of the total taxes paid the state; town lots from 34.303 to 35.127 per cent; tangible personalty from 13.333 to 14.153 per cent; intangibles from 7.453 to 8.427 per cent; bank deposits from 1.133 to 1.422 per cent; and livestock in 1917 bore 7.029 per cent of the burden.

Thus, under the old tax law, 77 per cent of all the revenues of the state were derived from taxation of land. That was before property was classified and some of it relieved from state taxes. In addition more than another 7 per cent was borne by livestock upon the land.

SOUTH IS TURNING AGAINST CALOMEL

Mr. Dodson, the "Liver Tone" Man, Responsible for Change for the Better.

Every druggist in town has noticed a great falling off in the sale of calomel. They all give the same reason: Dodson's Liver Tone is taking its place.

"Calomel is dangerous and people know it," Dodson's Liver Tone is personally guaranteed by every druggist who sells it. A large bottle doesn't cost very much but if it fails to give easy relief in every case of liver sluggishness and constipation, just ask for your money back.

Dodson's Liver Tone is a pleasant-tasting, purely vegetable remedy, harmless to both children and adults. Take a spoonful at night and wake up feeling fine; no biliousness, sick headache, acid stomach or constipated bowels. It doesn't gripe or cause inconvenience all the next day like violent calomel. Take a dose of calomel today and tomorrow you will feel weak, sick and nauseated. Don't lose a day.

HAVE YOU GOT YOURS YET?

Our proposition is so simple and yet so fair that business men, professional men and all other intelligent people everywhere are seizing the opportunity to become owners of property in this great oil field. Orders are coming in from different parts of the United States and if home folks want to acquire an interest before it is too late, now is the time to act.

Do you own any land in this oil district? Do you hold any lease on any of this land? If not, do you want an interest in it?

Don't you want to actually own some of the land in this oil district and an interest in an oil or gas well? If you do read on.

We have divided 33 acres of land in the very heart of this great oil district into lots of 100 square feet each which we are selling for $10 a lot, together with an interest in the oil well which we are preparing to drill near the center of this tract just as soon as we finish this sale. Anyone has the right to purchase as many lots as he may desire.

$100.00 invested in Trapshooters Oil Company yielded . . .	$ 42,000.00
$100.00 invested in Merritt Oil Company yielded . . .	$ 57,000.00
$100.00 invested in San Joaquin Oil Company yielded . . .	$ 88,000.00
$100.00 invested in Fortuna Oil Company yielded . . .	$250,000.00

John D. Rockefeller said: Don't delay. Get in while you can. The unwise man thinks a thing worthless or it would not be offered to him.

Our proposition puts this opportunity to become independent within reach of every man, woman and child. It will not be within your reach after the oil and gas wells begin to give up their great wealth in this oil field.

We will explain every detail to anyone calling at our office at 119 Clinton Street, or you may call us by Cumberland Telephone No. 67, or you may fill in the following blank and mail to us, and we will mail you a warranty deed to the lot or lots which you desire.

Congress Kills Daylight Saving Law; Senate Follows House in Overriding President's Rejection of Repeal

Repeal of the daylight-saving act has been accomplished. The senate voted to sustain the house in passing the repeal measure over President Wilson's veto. The vote was 57 to 19.

The repeal of the law, which now takes its place among the very few which have been passed over a presidential veto, becomes effective after the clocks are turned back to normal in October. It will go down in legislative history as one of the very few measures which twice have been vetoed by a president and become law by the vote of more than two-thirds in both houses of congress.

Agitation for repeal of the daylight-saving law first came from farmers, but recently was buttressed by labor unions, mothers' clubs, rural school authorities, and many other interests.

Urban opinion also became divided and officials of many cities and smaller towns demanded repeal. Congress was flooded with petitions for repeal and with petitions urging retention of the statute.

Loss of time in farm labor was the principal objection raised to the law. This complaint came principally from farmers employing "hired hands." Opponents of the law declared all farmers, at some time during the summer season, are employers of labor and suffered from the law.

The complaint of loss of labor was based principally on the shortening of the working day on the farm by the advancing of the clock one hour from March to October.

The farmers declared they could not adjust farm work to the advanced time because, with the clock advanced an hour, farm work could not be begun as early in the morning as under the normal time schedule and must close an hour earlier.

Hubert Andrews, driving a Ford car, let the machine get away from him Monday afternoon and went through a board fence into the yard behind H. C. Pearson's shoe shop. The car was slightly damaged but the occupants of the car escaped injury, after two of them had jumped to safety. Bystanders say he was making too much speed to turn the corner, which was responsible for the accident.

MARY'S LITTLE LAMB.

Mary had a little lamb its fleece was white as snow. It strayed away one day where lambs should never go. And Mary sat her quickly down and tears streamed down her eyes she never found her little lamb for she did not advise her. And Mary had a brother John who kept the village store. He sat down and smoked a pipe and watched the open door. And as the people passed along and did not stop to buy down with him and smoked his pipe and blithely his sheep eyes. And so the sheriff closed him out but still he lingered near and so Mary came to drop with him a sympathetic tear. How is it sister can you tell why other merchants here sell all their goods so readily and thrive from year to year? Remembering her own lost lamb the little maid replied. "These other fellows get their John because they advertise."

Kentucky Teachers Are Most Important Factor In $300,000 Drive

GILBERT URGES ACTION

"The country schoolma'am—the faithful, enduring bulwark of progress and civilization—is the personage on whom the success of Kentucky's $300,000 drive to build a new Children's Home depends. The country schoolma'am is the one who is in the direct path to take charge of the children, and it is her duty to see that the children are properly cared for."

V. O. Gilbert, state superintendent of schools, urges all teachers to get their best efforts into the campaign until it closes the first week in November. "Country schoolma'ams are often too busy to get personally into the campaign, and perhaps the teachers think it is not up to them to make the initiative in the matter. I want to urge all country schoolma'ams to put forth their best efforts now, and campaign, but if some thought leaders forget their duty in the matter, I want to see the teachers' association take hold and push it through to the great success it deserves. Many of the prominent people of the state who would be willing to front a campaign in their business, are busy taking part in the political campaign. There is a desire for teachers and the state to show their initiative and qualities of leadership and management in their schools and communities."

A Business Investment.
The new home which will be built after the campaign, will be a group of cottages on a prime ten acres near Louisville. This will provide some accommodations for one child, and the duties connected with the management of the farm will give excellent training to the other children. In the care of the Kentucky Children's Home Society.

"It is not only a good, charming cause, but a sound business investment," Mr. Gilbert said. "Instead of the one-seventy percent return to provide for the Kentucky children, then come into our care, we will have fifty percent of ground upon which to raise provisions, which will cost less than pay for the cost of the food supplies. The Old Peoples' Home at Louisville, Ky., which consumes thirty-five tons of raisins more food than is consumed, and there is a surplus to apply on other expenses."

BILL MINOR KILLED.

Lawrence Masterson, late Dunson and Bill Minor of this city, were making a trip down the river and on reaching a point near Charleston, Miss., were notified that a party had pitched camp near there and were being held out with six deputies went to the camp about 11 o'clock Friday night. The men were in the tent playing cards when the sheriff ordered them to surrender. Kidney disease often advances so rapidly that many a person is hardly in its grasp before it is a matter of days. Prompt attention should be given the earliest symptom of kidney disorder. If there is a dull pain in the back, headache, dizzy spells or a tired, worn-out feeling, or if the kidney secretions are offensive, irregular and attended by pain, procure a good kidney remedy at once.

Your townspeople recommend Doan's Kidney Pills. Read the statement of this Hickman citizen.

And Proctor, prop. barber shop, 8th Johnson Ave., says: "From overwork and standing so much, my kidneys became affected and my back gave me a lot of pain. I had sharp, shooting pains across the small of my back and the kidney secretions were irregular in passage. I had to get up at night quite a few times and the secretions were highly colored and smelling in passage. I used Doan's Kidney Pills when I was troubled in that way and they never failed to benefit me."

Price 60c at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Proctor had. Foster-McBarn Co., Mfgs., Buffalo, N. Y.

Apple cider has now taken a jump and is selling at $2.00 a gallon but in some instances $1.50 a gallon. It has been selling from fifty to sixty cents a gallon during the summer. Just why this beverage should take such a leap is not plain unless because it has become so popular since the first of July.

SUGAR SITUATION

Wholesaler in Letter to Retailer Gives an Opinion.

The following letter from a Calro wholesaler to a Hickman merchant gives a fairly good explanation of the sugar situation. It was not written for publication, and is, therefore, the better as an explanation of the present shortage. Here it is:

"What is the cause of the present sugar situation? This is the question that is being freely asked these days. There are various answers given, some that are erroneous and some that bear truth. Is it because the United States is shipping it to Europe? No, absolutely not. We are exporting no sugar except that owned by the Royal Commission which was refined in this country out of raw sugar owned by the Commission. Is there a shortage of raw sugar? No. There is a shortage in the Louisiana Cane but this plays a very small part in the raw sugar situation. Of course we all know there is a shortage of European beet but this never comes to this country. That gap however has to be filled by the world supply. Most of the sugar refined and consumed in this country comes from Cuba. The United States Equalization Board purchased last year's crop of Cuban sugar and named a price on it to refiners and jobbers. This lot of sugar is practically exhausted. This board has decided not to purchase the new crop. The Cuban crop is larger than last year. The beet sugar crop in this country is larger than last year. Then why the scarcity? There are several reasons:

"1. We are at that season when the old crop is about exhausted and the new crop is just beginning to move.

"2. The shipping strike materially curtailed shipments of raw sugar from Cuba and other producing countries to the United States which caused refiners to run short.

"3. There has been a great increase in the consumption of sugar this year over any previous one. The figures of the United States Equalization Board show that for the current year there has been an increase in consumption of three hundred twenty six thousand tons over the corresponding period last year.

"It will take a few months before conditions become normal. You can assist materially by advising your customers to discontinue buying in large quantities. Stop hoarding.

"We look for no permanent relief soon, especially not before January 1."

It's Fuel that's Expensive—Not the Stove

A Cheap, putty-jointed stove will waste more than its Original Cost in Fuel every winter.

As you know, fully one-half the carbon available for heat in soft coal is gas—the entire gas supply used for fuel and illumination in many cities and towns being made from common soft coal. The ordinary stove in burning soft coal allows this gas-half of the fuel to pass up the chimney unburned, thus wasting it as a heat producer.

Cole's Original Hot Blast Stove, by means of the patented Hot Blast draft and other patented features, making air-tight joints without the use of stove putty, distills this gas from the upper surface of the coal, utilizing it as a heat producer along with the fixed carbon or coke in the coal, thus burning all the coal. This is why

Cole's Original Hot Blast

Saves the Dollars and makes a ton of common $3.00 soft coal or lignite do the work of $9.00 worth of hard coal.

Your old stove and imitation Hot Blast are not air-tight, do not save the escaping gases and do not give you a warm house at night, because they are made with putty joints. You cannot afford to say to yourself, "My old stove will have to do this winter." The old stove is eating up the price of a new stove every year. Not only that, but on top of the cost is the unsatisfactory result it gives. It is always out the coldest morning.

Even Heat Day and Night—Fire Never Out

Cole's Hot Blast is so perfect in construction that fire will keep all night, and when the draft is opened in the morning will burn two or three hours with the fuel put in the night before. No other stove does this. Fire, therefore, never goes out, and the rooms are kept at an even temperature all the time. Burns hard coal, soft coal, slack, lignite or wood.

OUR GUARANTEE

- 1.—We guarantee a saving of one-third in fuel over any lower draft stove of the same size with soft coal or slack.
- 2.—We guarantee Cole's Hot Blast uses less hard coal for heating a given space than any base burner made with same heating surface.
- 3.—We guarantee that the rooms can be heated from one to two hours each morning, with the soft coal or hard coal put in the stove the evening before.
- 4.—We guarantee that the stove will hold fire with soft coal 24 hours without attention.
- 5.—We guarantee a uniform heat day and night, with soft coal, hard coal or lignite.
- 6.—We guarantee every stove to remain absolutely air-tight as long as used.
- 7.—We guarantee the feed door to be smoke and dust proof.

The above guarantee is made with the understanding that the stove be operated according to directions, and set up with a good fire.

For Hard Coal — Saves Half

The extent of unburned gases in hard coal is shown by opening the magazine cover of a base burner when the extra oxygen supplied fills the entire stove with flaming gas.

The fact that no stove putty is used to make air-tight joints, gives you perfect control over the drafts on Cole's Hot Blast. The slow, economical combustion, and the large, positive, radiating surface make it the greatest fuel-saving, hard coal stove made.

Would You Lose $50.00 in Fuel to Save $1.00 on the Cost of Your Stove?

That is what you do when you buy a cheaply constructed, putty jointed, showy made imitation stove. Like all successful inventions, Cole's Original Hot Blast has many inferior imitations, avoid them. They all lack the patented features and careful construction, which make the Original Hot Blast a great success. They do not stay tight, and soon open seams and cracks which render them worthless as fire keepers. See the name "Cole's Hot Blast from Chicago" on the feed door. None genuine without it.

PLAN ACTION

War on Profiteering Will Start in a Few Days.

Armed for the first time with a new enacted Federal law providing severe penalties, including prison terms, the Federal high cost of living Commission of Kentucky, an adjunct of the Department of Justice, met at Louisville, Monday, to consider its course of action in view of the enactment of the Lever food bill.

This campaign is to effect the entire state. Their first act will be to look into any cases where sugar has been sold in excess of the a pound, the price fixed by the government. Flour prices came next and on down the line. Clothing prices are also to be investigated.

All country chairmen will be asked to make reports on prices charged by merchants in their respective counties.

Material for many cases had already been submitted and prosecutions will begin as soon as a copy of the new law is received by the Commission.

HOGS DECLINE

Prices Take Big Tumble Monday, $1.75 Under Last Week.

Prices of pork on the hoof were given another big slash Monday. A 75-cent reduction of the quoted price of the best hogs took the market for that grade to the lowest level since February, 1917.

The top price Monday was $12.25, or $1.75 below the quotations of a week ago, and total reduction of $9.75 under the prices of last July.

If the farmer must stand this big drop, it looks like the "ultimate consumer" ought to get a reduction on bacon and lard of at least 2 cents a pound.

Roy McNeill of Hickman, had a load of hogs on the St. Louis market, Monday, we understand was caught for a goodly sum as a result of the break.

TO QUIT BUSINESS

Leibovitz Will Become Member of New Manufacturing Concern.

With an ambition to do greater things in a commercial way, myself and to gather with my brothers who are now and have for several years been connected with a large clothing manufacturer, have decided to enter into the pants manufacturing business during the coming year. In order that I may realize my aim, and that we may be able to begin our plans for the coming year I have decided to retire from the retail business, and wish to announce I shall offer for sale one of the cheapest, most up-to-date, and most profitable exclusive men and boys clothing, shoes, hats, and work goods business that can be found anywhere.

This well known and profitable business was established by myself in a very modest way about eight years ago on practically no capital, and has by the busy business principles of progress, service, and unselfish conception of sincerity of purpose and selling only the best products of America's foremost manufacturers, steadily grown in size and popularity until today it is spoken of, and recognized as one of the highest class and most profitable establishments in Western Kentucky and Tennessee.

This business is not being offered for sale on account of not being a paying investment, on the contrary, you will find upon investigation that it has a greater established following, and has made a greater financial stride for the amount of capital invested than any other store in Kentucky or Tennessee. While I realize that this is one of the very best paying establishments in the country, yet with the knowledge that my brothers have of the manufacturing business, together with their trade following in their respective territories, added by my personal knowledge of the consumers requirements we shall not only have a very formidable organization, but a larger field of operation with unlimited possibilities.

The stock that is being offered consists of clean, high class, dependable, well selected merchandise. No odds or jobs, and bought at prices much lower than present prevailing prices.

The patrons of this store are the best and most pleasant that can be had, and are attracted to this store for a distance of fifty miles. Stock, fixtures, good will and business signature will be sold. The latter, together with the reputation of this store is a household word for miles around, and this in itself will prove a valuable asset to the purchaser.

This is an unusually golden opportunity for a real progressive person to step into a profitable well established money making business, and secure larger returns on the investment.

If interested, I shall be pleased to furnish any further information desired.

Respectfully yours,

D. P. LEIBOVITZ.

P. S.—I realize that my progress is due first of all to the good will and patronage of my many friends and customers. In order to show in a substantial way my appreciation for what you have done I shall at an early date inaugurate a sale which in the face of shortening of merchandise, and steadily advancing prices enable you to secure your present and future needs at greatly below present market prices.

POULTRY

METHODS OF HANDLING HENS

Labor-Saving Appliances Are of Value on Poultry Farm—Orchard Furnishes Range.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

In general the simplest methods of handling poultry are best, especially on general farms, where poultry is a side issue, though such farms furnish the bulk of the poultry production. Labor-saving appliances are of value on poultry farms, but are not always practical on general farms. Women and children can do most of the poultry work on a general farm and therefore the labor of the man for other farm work. On general farms, place the poultry house convenient to the dwelling house in order to save steps.

One house holding from 75 to 150 hens can be used to advantage, allowing the hens free range all the time. An excellent arrangement is to have the house near an orchard, which furnishes a good range for the hens. By allowing free range the hens will pick up all the necessary green feed and will also get a considerable amount of their grain feed. Keep large hoppers containing dry mash before the hens constantly, so that it will be necessary to feed the scratch grains only once or twice daily. Very little male labor is required in caring for a flock containing from 100 to 150 hens than is required for from 30 to 100 hens, provided all the hens are kept in one house and have a large free range.

A separate shed or a room in the laying house can be utilized to advantage for hatching chickens with hens.

Poultry on Range Requires Less Care.

setting as many hens as possible at one time; this saves labor, as it takes only a little while longer to care for a number of setting hens than for one hen. Confine the setting hens to their nests and allow them all to come off at one time daily. An incubator may be used for hatching the eggs and the chicks may be put under hens for brooding, especially early in the season, when it is difficult to get hens to set as early as is desirable to produce early chickens.

Raise the chickens under hens, putting from 15 to 25 chickens with each hen, and confine the hens to small coops placed on a good green sod, or a field of some growing crop whereby the young chickens will have free range on fresh land. A considerable number of hens with broods of chickens can be kept in a limited space where the hens are confined to the coops.

In sections where commercial hatcheries exist the farmer can have his eggs hatched there and thus save the labor of hatching the chicks. These chickens can be reared with hens, or a store brooder which will cover from 200 to 400 chicks may be used to good advantage, thereby saving labor in feeding and caring for the chicks and still allowing the young chickens free range. By the use of these commercial hatcheries all the chickens can be hatched at one time and the chicks can be brought out early in the spring, at which time it is most profitable to hatch and raise chickens.

WATCH FOR LICE ON CHICKS

Where Pests Are Found Make Application of Small Amount of Lard—Provide Shade.

Watch for head lice on chicks: If found grease the head of each chick with a small amount of lard. Do not use salt with the lard, as often advised. Allow plenty of shade, as the hot sun's rays are often fatal to freshly greased chicks.

PROPER FEEDING IN SUMMER

Not Advisable to Give Too Rich Food During Extremely Hot Days—Not Easily Handled.

It is best not to feed too heavily, or of too rich food, during the extremely hot days which are experienced occasionally in summer because overloaded digestive systems cannot handle the food as well in the extreme heat.

MOONLIGHT SCHOOLS.

A moonlight school taught by Miss Shoff and Mrs. Mary Barbour, will begin Monday night, Oct. 27, at 8 o'clock, at Hickman College. All boys and girls over 14 who can not possibly come to the day school together with all men and women who would like a review or more instruction are invited and urged to come and enroll.

The primary reason for having this night school is of course to get the person who for some reason or another has failed to get any education or at most very little, interested enough in himself to take this six weeks' course which will mean more to him than he can now possibly realize, and you people who read this article please appoint yourselves a committee of one to try to get some one of this group of people into this school because the most difficult task in regard to this work is finding out just who these people are and getting them out. Let all men who have worked under them make inquiry about this and use their influence to get these people out to this school where the teachers are gladly giving their services and more than anxious to add all those that will give them the chance to do so. Please remember that the person who can not read can not get any appeal or advancement made through the paper but must be talked with personally, so you can readily see what your personal service will mean to the cause. Nor should these people allow the fact of hard work through the day to interfere with their taking advantage of this opportunity, for all these teachers who will give their service gladly, have worked just as hard and in fact harder when you consider the nerve-racking task that is theirs through the day. One of these teachers has 30 little beginning children to work with through the day, another has the difficult problem of the 14 grade, yet they are anxious to be of service to their fellowmen and through them to their town, county and state, and if you people of education have the right kind of civic pride in regard to your community you will take advantage of this opportunity to serve your more unfortunate neighbor, who can not read his paper, his Bible, nor any other important literature that might fall into his hands, nor even write to his nearest loved one, by using your influence to get him into regular attendance at the night school either at Hickman College or the school at West Hickman, which will start Monday night, Oct. 27. This is a statewide movement and many counties are endeavoring to do all in their power to raise their rank in education by demanding regular day school attendance and interesting grown people in taking advantage of the golden opportunity offered them in these Moonlight schools.

Cannot Praise this Remedy too Highly

THE WAY ONE LADY FEELS AFTER SUFFERING TWO YEARS

Judging from her letter, the misery and wretchedness endured by Mrs. Charlie Taylor, R. F. D. No. 1, Box 144, Dillon, S. C., must have been terrible. No one, after reading her letter, can continue to doubt the great healing power of PER-UNA for troubles due to catarrh or catarrhal conditions in any part of the body. Her letter is an inspiration to every sick and suffering man or woman anywhere. Here it is: "I suffered two years with catarrh of the head, stomach and bowels. Tried two of the best doctors, who gave me up. I then took PER-UNA and can truthfully say I am well. When I began to use PER-UNA, I weighed one hundred pounds. My weight now is one hundred and fifty. I cannot praise PER-UNA too highly, for it was a Godsend to me. I got relief from the first half bottle and twelve bottles cured me. I advise all sufferers to take PER-UNA."

As an emergency remedy in the home, there is nothing quite the equal of this reliable, time-tried medicine, PER-UNA. Thousands place their sole dependence on it for coughs, colds, stomach and bowel trouble, constipation, rheumatism, pains in the back, side and limbs and to prevent the grip and Spanish Flu. To keep the blood pure and maintain bodily strength and robustness, take PER-UNA. You can buy PER-UNA anywhere in either tablet or liquid form.

How Mat Cohen Spends Your Money
Facts for the Taxpayers of Kentucky

Mat S. Cohen, Commissioner of Agriculture and Democratic candidate for Secretary of State, employs more people in his department and spends more money than any other three combined departments of the State government. It is very important to the taxpayers, especially the farmers, how this money is spent.

In three years, Cohen's personal traveling expenses, which you taxpayers pay, have piled up to a total of $4,153.93, an average of $1,384.44 per year. In 1917 he charged you taxpayers $5.00 per day for ten days for attending the State Fair in addition to railroad fare and a hotel and meals bill of more than $100.00. Does anybody pay you to visit the State Fair?

Vouchers on file in the Auditor's office at Frankfort show what Cohen has been doing with your money. Below are a few samples of the extravagance of this man Cohen who, four years ago, solemnly promised you taxpayers to spend your money carefully and economically:

COHEN CHARGES YOU EXTRA FOR DOING HIS JOB

The minute Cohen was elected to office he got the state legislature to raise his salary, but the legal department of the state ruled he could not have it. As Commissioner of Agriculture, Cohen is a member of all the boards in his department and his duty is to attend their meetings regularly as a part of the work for which you taxpayers pay him a salary. But Cohen charged you from $500 to $100.00 a day for attending meetings of various boards. The total you paid him for this was $920.00 for 83 days, an average of $7.44 per day. Easy money for answering "here" at roll call.

Cohen was paid $100.00 upon the order of the Veterinary Examiners' Board and it was charged to the Veterinary License Fund. The Attorney General ruled the claim was illegal.

Certain clerks in Cohen's department draw money in addition to their salaries. One was paid $26.00 a meeting for attending four meetings of the Live Stock Sanitary Board. She draws a regular salary of $2,100.00 a year which you taxpayers pay. Can you beat it?

Another clerk gets a salary of $1,200.00 a year and in addition she is paid an extra $400.00 as clerk of the State Board of Veterinary Examiners. Pretty soft.

WHAT'S IN THE STATE FAIR BOOKS?

On Oct. 6, the Republican State Campaign Committee asked the privilege of having the State Fair Books examined by certified public accountants. Cohen at first consented, but later denied the privilege. When threatened with a law suit, he said he would submit the request to a meeting of the State Board of Agriculture, Oct. 23, a few days before the election.

The books of the State Fair belong to the taxpayers who contribute huge sums of money each year to help keep it going.

Among other items in these books are vouchers showing Mat Cohen's personal expense account. Why does Cohen object to an immediate examination of these books?

LIVE STOCK

SPECIALIZE IN FEEDER HOGS

One Hundred Carloads of Cholera-Free Animals Shipped Annually From South Dakota.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Feeder hogs, perfect as to specification and designed to satisfy the most discriminating purchaser, are exported annually from the Belle Fourche reclamation project, South Dakota. Approximately 100 carloads of cholera-free and unfettered porkers are shipped each season. The output for the last few years has been purchased by Nebraska farmers who fatten and condition the hogs for the central markets. A special advantage about such shipments is that the animals need not be held in quarantine while vaccinated to satisfy the requirements of interstate shipment, and the purchaser does not have to bear added expenses, such as yardage and feed costs, which he would have to pay if he bought his stock hogs on the central market.

The Belle Fourche project was recently declared free from cholera by the state live stock sanitary board. The hog growers of that section have decided it is most profitable for them to produce feeder hogs because the high price and limited quantity of corn in their vicinity available for feeding purposes make the fattening of hogs a hazardous undertaking. On the other hand, alfalfa hay is grown in abundance, and the pasture afforded is keenly relished by the hogs. Hence the project farmers are limiting their operations to feeder-hog production.

A co-operative live stock shipping association has been organized on the Belle Fourche project to market the hogs in unique fashion this fall. The plan is to secure carload orders for these hogs so that they may be shipped out in small train loads for delivery to points east of the Missouri river. The idea is to have about fifteen cars of hogs in each train, these cars being loaded at Newell and Nishland on the project and to be carried to destination, without stopping for feed or water, within the 36-hour limit. Information is being promulgated among the prospective buyers along the route regarding the freight rates on a minimum car of feeder hogs so that they can estimate accurately the gross cost of such a load of quality feeders delivered at their destination. The hogs sold during the fall of 1918 ranged from 16 to 21 cents a pound f. o. b. cars, some of the loads being sold above the market quotation and some of them under.

The Belle Fourche plan of marketing feeder hogs should be of interest to other stock raisers and feeders in various sections of the country. Illustrating, as it does, a new method of feeder-animal distribution. Handling through a co-operative shipping association directly from the producer to the purchaser makes it certain that the buyer will receive the hogs at his station at a minimum cost for handling in transit. Furthermore, the fact that the animals come from a cholera-free country is positive insurance against losses from that disease. If the hogs are not exposed to infection in transit or subsequent to their delivery at their new homes. Prospects are that in the future many South Dakota farmers in the eastern part of the state who raise considerable corn and make a practice of feeding the grain to hogs will rely to a certain extent on the animals coming from the Belle Fourche project.

KEEP BEEF CALVES GROWING

Ensilage, if Available, is Best and Cheapest Feed When Pastures Have Become Short.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Beef calves on pasture should be kept in a thrifty, growing condition. If the pasture becomes short the cows should be fed, otherwise the development of the calves may be checked. Ensilage, if available, is the cheapest and best feed. Good hay is an excellent supplementary feed, and cows, even on a fairly good pasture, seem to relish a small quantity of dry feed. Soy beans, cow peas, or other pasture crops may be used. If it is not practicable to supply supplementary feeds to the cows the calves should be fed a little grain. This can be done easily by placing a small quantity in a creep in the pasture. A mixture of one-third corn, one-third oats, and one-third bran by weight is a good feed for this purpose.
